Professional Issues Tutorial: Abstract and Concrete

Philip Wadler

Monday 5 October 2015

Consider the following text.

> Trust is a very important factor in our day to day social life. Our social life cannot succeed if we don't place our trust in someone or some persons. In the real social life we generally act based on the trust upon a people. The recent age has noticed some great rise in the ecommerce and social networks websites. People nowadays act more over the internet than anything else. It has slowly become an integral part of our life. So the importance to get a high quality and secure interactions over the web has increased a lot these days. Trust over the internet and social networks on the web plays a very important role in this. Also, there is an abundance of user generated materials over the net. We need to identify the source and verify that it is coming from the right source. Trust again plays a significant role over here. This is because the value of the trustworthiness of a person given a context or trying to interact with another person requires the assessment of the piece of information which can claim that this comes from a real person. This can be done mainly in some ways, like identity management, or reputation mechanisms etc. All these directly related to trust.

Rewrite the text so that all abstract points are replaced by concrete examples.

Name _____